Before Another Day

by Marjorie Laurane

Do you hear the laughter of God
 Rumbling through the universe?
 Do you hear the unseen choirs
 Singing hosannas in exultation?
 Even the galaxies whirl in joyous dance.

You have a standing invitation to God's party,
 Given to you when you first received the breath of life.
 Put off your earthly shoes and fear-filled thinking.
 Cast out doubt and don a cloak of joy
 And join the hosts before another day has passed.

FRIENDLY HOUR by Lida Marie Erwin

There's a precious time at the end of the day
 When shadows weave their gloam;
 When the loitering sunbeams have ceased their play,
 Like children going home;
 When the candles in heaven's windows are lit,
 And the drowsy elm trees nod;
 There is a friendly hour when I love to sit
 And have a talk with God.

God Be With You by R. H. Grenville

How often we say the words: "Good-bye, good-bye"
 In casual courtesy, or yearning love;
 How seldom, think their meaning: "God be with you"
 (Adios in the mellow, Spanish tongue).
 The Psalmist, many centuries ago,
 Expressed the thought as only poets can:
 "God be with you in your going out,
 And coming in."

Yes, God be with you in the commonplace
 Of everyday, in waking and in sleep.
 God guide you through the night of loneliness,
 And in the fires of danger keep you safe.
 I shall not fear for you, nor bid you stay
 Within some narrow compass, lest you fail.
 "God be with you," I will say, and know
 That all is well.
